Reflections for

The Seventeenth Sunday in Ordinary Time

The disciples notice Jesus praying "in a certain place." They ask him to teach them to pray just as John the Baptist had taught his disciples. Jesus teaches them a simple version of the most famous Christian prayer, the Our Father, or the Lord's Prayer.

Having taught his disciples a simple, daily prayer, Jesus goes on to reassure them that God answers prayers. First he tells a parable about a persistent neighbor who asks a friend for bread at midnight. The friend is already in bed and has no desire to disturb his family by opening the door. But because the neighbor is persistent, the sleeping man gets up and gives him all that he needs. If a neighbor is willing to help us if we are persistent enough, how could God not respond to our requests?

This teaching concludes with the reminder that if we seek, we will get a response. If a human father, with all his faults, knows how to give good gifts to his children, how much more will our heavenly Father give us? Instead of good gifts, however, Luke substitutes the word Holy Spirit. This foreshadows the gift of the Holy Spirit, who is central to Luke's theology and who will play an important role in the growth of the early Church after Pentecost.

The parable and the concluding teaching in this section should not lead us to think of prayer as a series of requests presented to God. Rather, as Jesus teaches in his model prayer, prayer consists in recognizing God's holiness and his rule over all things.

Recently (7/16) the Church celebrated the memorial of Our Lady of Mt. Carmel. It was established by a 12th Century community of monks who came to live on the mountain in Israel upon which the Old Testament prophet Elijah fought against the prophets of the god Baal. I won't relate the whole story here, although I think it is one of the most fascinating stories in the Bible (1 Kings 18:18-40.) I can only imagine how alone Elijah felt against not just the 450 prophets of Baal but against the whole nation of Israel who had turned against him (and against God) by following false idols. However, Elijah kept his trust in God which helped him not only to overcome the opposition but even brought the people back to the true faith.

There's no question about it: from the earliest times to today, being true to our own faith has been counter-cultural and many times followers have felt that the whole world is against them. But it is exactly by remaining true to our God (which ultimately keeps us true to ourselves) that we can prevail and maybe even bring others back who have strayed. When we are felt "put upon" by others because of our beliefs, we can remind ourselves that God, who really is the one in charge, will remain with us and protect us no matter where our defense of the truth may lead us.

The other side of that coin applies as well: have we been put into confrontation in defense of our faith, or do we so much want to be liked that we are willing to abandon that faith (or, worse yet, cling only to those parts which avoid confrontation and instead insipidly espouse a meaningless peace and love as "supermarket Catholics")? It is simply impossible to have it both ways: we either remain true to Christ – which will doubtless place us in uncomfortable situations as we will be called to defend the Catholic position against such issues as abortion, human rights, the sanctity of marriage and the family; or do we follow the false idols of the world – which may make us safe and comfortable but may also reduce our chances of salvation to that of a "camel passing through the eye of a needle" (c.f. Matthew 19:24)? The choice is and always has been ours. God continues to look for "modern-day Elijahs" to stand up and defend the truth; are we willing to take the job?
